

What can a FSIP Behavioral Health Case Manager do for you?

Behavioral Health Case Managers work with clients directly and with family members, close friends, community members and other health care workers to provide outreach and supportive services.

Some of these services include:

- Assessing needs for help among your activities of daily life.
- Listening to concerns and providing consultation and interventions as needed.
- Provide referrals for access to agencies such as drug & alcohol treatment facilities.

Who we service at Five Sandoval Indian Pueblos:

Five Sandoval Indian Pueblos, Inc. (FSIP) programs are administered in the four important areas of community health, human services, employment and education.

Five Sandoval Indian Pueblo, Inc. is one of the oldest Native American non-profit organizations in New Mexico serving the 5 tribal communities of Cochiti, Jemez, Sandia, Santa Ana, and Zia Pueblo's. FSIP also serves other communities such as: Santo Domingo, San Felipe, Isleta, Albuquerque, Algodones, Belen, Bernalillo, Bosque Farms, Canon, Cochiti Lake, Gilman, Jemez Springs, Los Chaves, Los Lunas, Pena Blanca, Peralta, Ponderosa, Rio Rancho, San Ysidro, and Sile in Sandoval.

Our mission is to provide the best quality care in such a manner that the value of tribal sovereignty, traditional culture and community integrity are respected and preserved.

Referral Sources:

Self-Referral

Tribal Courts

Medical Providers

Social Services

Surrounding Communities

If you are in need of any of our services, or would like more information, please contact a case manager directly.

Dana Hanna, Case Manager
Coordinator
505-350-6731 dhanna@fsipinc.org

Estevan Sando, Case Manager
505-917-6980 esando@fsipinc.org

Vernon Kaiyou, Case Manager
505-239-0847 vkaiyou@fsipinc.org